

CLOSE OF A NOTORIOUS DEN.

House of All Nations Furnishings to Go at Auction.

Must Be Sold to Satisfy the Former Mistress's Claims.

The Sheriff will sell at public auction next Monday morning all the gaudy and gorgeous furniture in the famous "House of All Nations," 117 West Thirtieth street, and thereby hangs a tale that might startle New Yorkers even less innocent and unsophisticated than Rev. Dr. Parkhurst.

The story of the events that lead up to this forced sale is a marvelous one.

The house is a four-story, brownstone mansion, with grand portals and an imposing front. It was the elegant residence of some one on the coterie fringe of the 150 of a generation ago, but for several years it has been a gilded den of vice.

Five years ago its proprietors, grown amiable, sold the house to Carrie Baker for $25,000. Sold the furniture, too, and the "good will and trade," and for the latter item Carrie Baker agreed to pay to Mrs. James Charles the stupendous sum of $25,000.

That is $25,000 for the establishment and its established trade. The house had already acquired the title of "House of All Nations," from the fact that Mrs. Charles had had its rooms fitted up sumptuously, and each decorated with the colors and emblems of different countries.

There was the golden harp on verdant ground for the Irish room, red for the English room, with the lion and the unicorn for the stars and stripes, and this was called the "Union room."

The walls were hung in richest velvets, satins and silks, and the furniture of each room was appropriate to the character of the finish.

It is said that "gentlemen customers" had swelled the receipts of the house for a single night under the regime of Mrs. Charles to $5,000.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

DRINKING UP THE "MITS."

Syracuse Convention Promoters Making Slow Progress Locally.

Eleventh District Republicans to Denounce Col. Bliss Publicly.

The hardest part of the job which the Provisional State Committee of Democratic Objectors has undertaken is the organizing of a machine in this city which will make a respectable showing against the formidable Tammany Hall organization.

Ex-Mayor Grace and his coadjutors in the "Anti" movement, however, by no means despair of finally accomplishing their object. They have established an up-to-date headquarters, from which the city movement will be directed, the William street rooms being retained as quarters for the State Committee.

The headquarters is at 115 and 127 Fourth street, next to the corner of Irving place, where the malcontents can easily throw stones at their ancient enemy in Tammany Hall.

Arrangements have been made so far for the enrollment of democrats in sympathy with the organization, to be held at the city's twenty-four assembly districts.

The chief difficulty encountered is in getting the practical politicians who are opposed to Tammany Hall locally, to tie themselves with the Syracuse Convention movement.

Thus far, it is said, only a few of the old-time city leaders have been found who are willing to begin the work of organization. Other of the anti-Tammany leaders may be induced to interest themselves, it is said, if they are assured of the full support of Ex-Mayor Grace and the other Central Union leaders in the coming local campaign against the Wigwam.

NOT FIGHT AGAINST BLISS.

The opponents of Col. Grace Bliss in the Republican organization of the Eleventh Assembly District are conducting a hot and relentless campaign against the Colonel's leadership.

Separate headquarters for the malcontents have been established in Armory Hall at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway, and arrangements have been made for a mass-meeting at Tammany Hall at Twenty-ninth street, to denounce the action of Col. Bliss and his followers.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

That is, Mrs. Charles got a judgment and the house was sold a month ago by the sheriff, bringing $15,000, and leaving about $10,000 still due from Carrie Baker.

But Carrie Baker, a small, wily blonde-haired woman of thirty-five or forty years, did not succeed so well, and a year ago Mrs. Charles, who had opened a fine establishment in the three houses to the west of 117, sued in the supreme court for a foreclosure of her mortgage on what about $25,000 was due.

The case dragged along, and for a while the supreme court was nominally ruling the "House of All Nations."

ED CORBETT'S DARK SECRET.

It Caused Some Excitement at a Performance of "Blue Jeans."

A Marine Exhibition Talked Of for Madison Square Garden.

Two damsels of an uncompromisingly dark hue presented themselves at the Fourteenth Street Theatre last night. They wanted to see "Blue Jeans" and had a card from Ed Corbett, the theatre's representative.

The card read: "Pass two of my intimates." Managers Josephine and Arthur gazed, but accommodated the dusky beauties in the gallery. Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

Corbett, who arrived during the performance, was buttonholed and cross-examined. He explained that he had tendered the card to Corbett, the theatre's representative.

The London and Liverpool Clothing Co.

will inaugurate the season with the greatest display of fashionable Clothing ever offered to the New York public. In order to advertise ourselves we shall offer special bargains in each department

TO-DAY and TO-MORROW.

Bargains in Boys' Department.

500 Suits at 75 cents; worth $2.00.

Bargains in Men's Department.

300 stylish Spring Overcoats at $5.00; worth $10.00.

600 Nobby Cheviot Suits, new shades, at $10; worth $15.00.

These goods are all new, well made and trimmed, and warranted to give good satisfaction.

LONDON and LIVERPOOL CLOTHING CO.,

86 and 88 Bowery, Cor. Hester St.

SPORTING NEWS AND NOTES.

Giants Showing Up Well in Practice Work at Richmond.

Manager Pat Powers has his New York baseball players well in hand already, it reports from Richmond, where the Giants are practicing. The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team left for the south.

The weather was so bad that a full game could not be played. The twirlers from Gotham yesterday enjoyed for the first time the balmy breezes Powers talked about before the team